Open up both Refworks and Google Scholar at the same time

The screenshot displays the RefWorks web interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with 'References', 'View', 'Search', 'Bibliography', 'Tools', and 'Help'. A search box is present with the text 'Search Your Database'. Below the navigation bar, there are buttons for 'New Folder', 'Create Bibliography', and 'New Reference'. The main content area shows a list of references under the heading 'References > All References'. The selected reference is 'Ref ID 1' and is a 'Journal Article Reference 1 of 2'. The details for this reference are as follows:

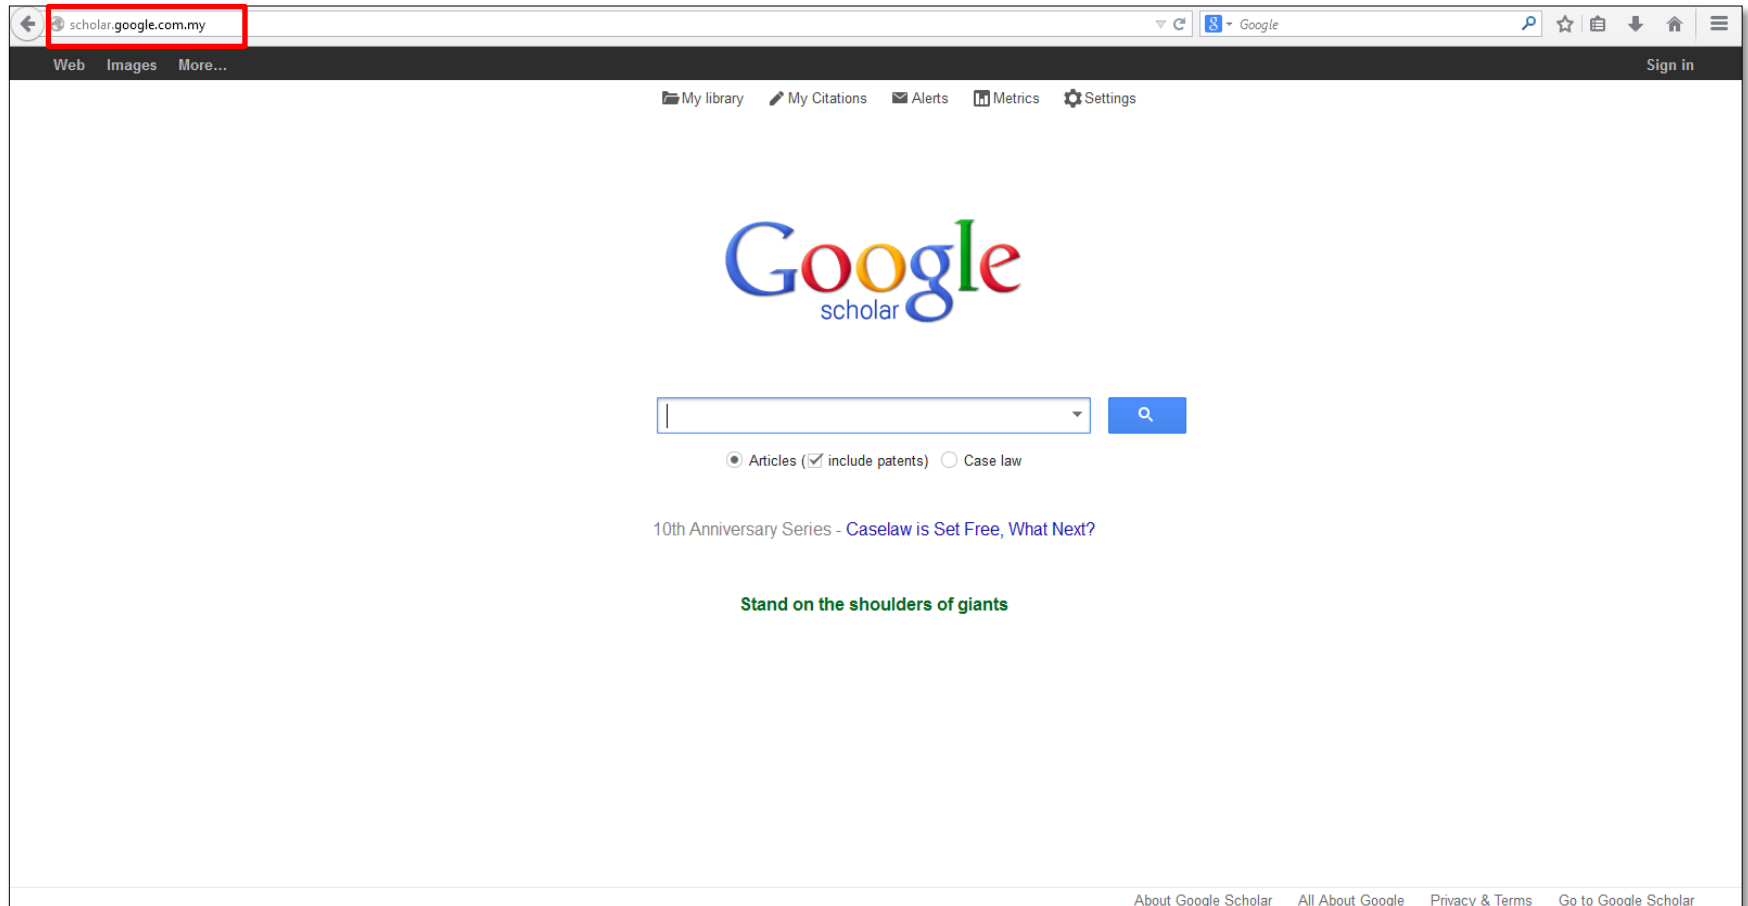

- Ref ID: 1
- Ref Type: Journal Article
- Source Type: Print(0)
- Output Language: Unknown(0)
- Authors: Bruce, Christine Susan
- Folders: Last Imported
- Title: Workplace experiences of information literacy
- Periodical, Full: International Journal of Information Management
- Periodical, Abbrev: Int. J. Inf. Manage.
- Pub Year: 1999

6. Click on Import into Refworks
